

WebPro News

September 12, 2007

Students are given more opportunities as virtual schools continue to increase in popularity. Online learning allows flexibility for those students with disabilities, while at the same time, allowing those gifted students the ability to move at a much faster rate of speed. WebProNews has the latest statistics as well as exclusive interviews with North American Council for Online Learning President, Susan Patrick and Todd Hitchcock of Florida Virtual School. For all the details, tune it to WebProNews.

<http://videos.webpronews.com/2007/09/12/virtual-schools-on-the-rise/>